

SAY GOODBYE TO SKEPTICISM!

This letter is for all the “Non-Believers” out there. (We used to be ones too)

My son Mikey had eczema as an infant. The doctor placed him on a soy formula and the condition got better but never fully disappeared. In the meantime his older brother was diagnosed with a severe peanut allergy. The allergist questioned me about Mikey and his eczema - telling me that a lot of causes for eczema are food allergies. He was then tested and we discovered he was allergic to milk products, eggs, peanuts and cats. He was around nine months old when the doctor said “time to throw out all the baby food” I was a little concerned, because of the food allergies but the doctor wanted me to “give him whatever you eat”. We did and he broke out! He drank milk one time by accident (just a sip mind you) and was vomiting profusely within minutes. We decided to go with the strict food avoidance method. This was becoming harder and harder to manage with his older brother being able to eat certain foods and him not. You know they want to do whatever the older brother is doing.

I just wanted him to be “normal”. I didn’t want to have to worry every time we went to someone’s house that he was eating something that he wasn’t supposed to be. At any holiday get-together I would have to remind all the relatives not to give him anything to eat without checking with me or my husband first. I sounded like the paranoid mother!

When my friend mentioned that she met someone that was “cured” of their food allergies I was very interested. VERY skeptical but interested none the least.

I called The Get Well Center to find out some information and was very impressed when Dr. Perry actually got on the phone to speak with me. We set up a consultation that day. My husband and I after leaving the initial consultation were to say the least - in a state of disbelief. Being people who need to touch and feel things in order for them to be real - we could not grasp the whole “energy” concept.

It took us a few days to absorb all of the things Dr. Perry was trying to explain to us and then we finally started treatment for Mikey. Dr. Perry tested him for numerous agents and found so many other things that were causing his reactions. I was impressed with his thoroughness and dedication to his cause. After a few setbacks (all minor) my son is “cured” of his allergies. He had his first bowl of Breyers Vanilla Ice Cream and loved it! He also had Angel Food Cake and practically ate the whole thing by himself.

I cannot say enough about Dr. Perry and his “magic”. We are very thankful that we did not let our brains get in the way of helping our son grow up like a “normal” kid.

Sincerely,

S. Collins
